The class of 1910 shows that the tendency in the recent aluminac classes is just as strong toward matrimony as in the older classes, for already eleven out of eighty eight have married and numerous engagements are on record.

So far teaching as a profession has outstripped marriage with a total of 324 engaged in educational work. This list includes only nine members of the class of 1912. 103 of whom reported when the figures were gathered that they had not yet decided as to what they planned to do.
